and, given the tragic loss, we don't think this is the time for a political debate," spokeswoman Jennifer Baker told the Guardian.

Panel member Charles Cullen, however, strayed from the script late on Thursday, when he posted a comment online blaming the police killed in the South Carolina shooting, Charleston Parkery, for the death of his right congregants.

Cullen, who did not return a message left at his home on Jan. 20, posted on his Twitter account that Parkery was a "state senator who had voted against a law allowing gun owners to carry concealed weapons without permits."

Tucker Carlson thought it was monstrous that activists chanted outside his home last night.

Two weeks ago he was laughing about Goerge Soros being mailed a pipe bomb.

★★★★★ The heart and soul of Charleston's Mexican food scene. Easily the best salsa. Wonderful counterculture vibe. Warm welcomes every time. Welcome home to Santi's.
